

Be Easy On The Man!

His hands are Tied up on 3 Fronts

His inheritance, I don't envy!

Don't blame him too hard, the man hands are tied up by three cords; two from within and one from without. From within his hands are tied up on one side by the people that surrounded him, his immediate circle. He is surrounded by a bunch of merchant dealers (marchands) who are wheeling and dealing and have no notion about creating industries nor the intention to create industries to help their country, they are satisfied making money importing goods and selling goods, making money at the expense of the Haitian population. They are the elites of the Haitians economy; they have the wealth of the country in their hands and they are no better than the rest of the uneducated population. They are a bunch of small minded merchants who are contented just making money buying and selling goods, instead producing their own goods. They have no interest in the welfare of the country; they have no deep allegiance to the country. I sincerely believe that there isn't enough incentive in place to force them to create industries that will benefit the country; they need something to spur them to action. What President Martelly needs to do is to balance things out a little bit, even up the playing field, create some competition for them directly from the population that they are exploiting; that will motivate them to action. Idea changes the world, but it takes money to move the world; he needs to create an agency that will be there solely to empower the population financially. This agency will see that farmers and their educated sons and daughters get the knowledge they need, the technical know how, the money and the connections to compete with the more powerful class, well finance people that are in business just to exploit them. This agency will create the infrastructure for creating wealth, a kind of affirmative action for the general population. With the technical know how, the connection and proper funding, they will be able to produce enough food locally without the need to import. Like a child that needs guidance, the government will take them by the hands and assist them until they can function on their own. I believe that will be the only way to force those merchants to engage in creating industries themselves. They will not do so as long as profit is flowing; there is no competition. President Martelly needs to create competition between the two classes of the Haitian society, white and rich versus black and poor. I think that this is the only way out; may God bless him.

The third cord is from without

More importantly, his hands are tied by the US government; he is waiting on them to deliver. He has no moral authority to force them to act. He has no other choice but to manage the situation (gérer), promised big and delivers little (faire semblant). So he is managing time, waiting for time to deliver, His hands are tied, because if he tries to help the lower class, he does not want to give the impression that he is working against the upper class. Who are the upper class Haitians; they are the descendents of Syrians, Germans, Italians and French; they have all of the wealth of the country in their hands and have very little allegiance with the masses that are descendants of Africans. Finally both sides can claim that they have someone in power representing them, someone that still have the support of the darker majority of the population. He is not going to do much without facing the reality around him. I think that the man means well, but he has a delicate situation to manage. He needs help; he has three separates fronts that he has to deal with, left, right and center.

Who are the Haitian economy elites?

They have all of the wealth of Haiti in their hands; they rule by attrition. They are a minority few at war with the Haitian masses until now. They begin to realize that they have an ally in the palace; they finally have true representation, overtly. They have no intention to create industry in Haiti; they will not produce any product in Haiti without some push. Whatever Haiti had as industry; they bought them from the Haitian Government and sold them to our Dominican neighbors so that they can have maximum profit at the expense of the lower class.

Who are the Lower Class Haitians?

They are the poor, usually dark skin blacks Haitians that have no access to the wealth of their country. They have a universal system that is working against them, that negates blacks and cut them off out of the possibilities of this world. The whole world system is working against them; they only get relief from a compassionate few, but they are on their own when it comes to share in the wealth of their country. All that could be attained in Haiti, must be attained by the white and lighter skin Haitians, this is the way it is, until black, dark skin Haitians must know that that this is not God's intention for humanity. He sent His Son to give them life and have it more abundantly; that is to make it possible for them to share and partake in the possibilities that Haiti has to offer. As long as they continue to rely on third party intermediary spirits to help them access the power of God to create better life for themselves, they will remain in their condition. It is a lie by the devil that the power to create better world is reserved just for a few and not for the whole human race. God only releases His blessing when you know and identify yourself with the standard of being that He created you to be. For those who don't know that standard of being, He sent His son to demonstrate and to serve as pattern for them. You may cry your eyeballs out to God and He will not be moved; He is looking for something in you first before He can give you access to His creative power, that something is His signature, the tell tale sign that you are ready to receive His blessing. Jesus is that signature, that standard of being, the identity that you must take on before God can accept you as His own. Without that identity, you may as well be the son of the devil, for the devil is competing against God for your soul. Whites don't have to have it all, this is the greatest lie by the devil, you too can be part of the abundance of life, if you can identify yourself with the standard of being that God set for you. It is all in the identity that God set for us to become. When God created humanity, He had an intention in mind. Every created being, rather man or angel has a particular standard of being that God is looking for. The closer you are to that standard, the greater access you have to the power of God to create. Hence you know that standard, you no longer need third party spirits or man to access the power of God to create better living world for yourself.
