

Say it: “A House Divided Cannot Stand”

A war was waged between the Executive Branch and the Legislative Branch of the Haitian Government; this war was a necessary war, now that we have established as fact that these two branches of the Haitian Government are equal and separate; we need to engage in the business at hand, the people’s business, those that have elected us to serve.

This is the end of the year and soon will be the beginning of a new one; we need to occupy ourselves with real issues that matter to the Haitian people. We are going to be busy dealing with problems in our districts, in our communities, our national issues that these petty squabbles to prove ourselves are no longer matter; we have real problems to solve. The crime issue is a serious problem that is a threat to our national security, this must take center stage, the infrastructure that we need to promote economic growth, tourism and helping us get the resources that we need to maintain an army, send our children to school, real issue that matter.

November 28 of last year was an important date for the country of Haiti; this November marks a new beginning toward a better future.
